

Word of Knowledge - Testimony from Christina Weeks

In December 2008, I signed up for the prophetic booth at Wellspring Church. I sat with two people - both of whom I knew of, but did not know personally. Both had good words, but it was the final word of knowledge that struck a chord with me. The woman asked "Do you write? I see you writing for young women. I see you changing the way they view God."

Her statement confirmed a desire that I've had in my heart since childhood. I have been a hobby writer for years and have wanted to pursue writing more. In addition, my target audience is teen girls. Neither of the persons in the prophetic booth knew this about me. Because this statement is a positive encouragement and confirmation, I trust it is a word of knowledge from God.

Because of the word of knowledge, I pursued writing with greater fervor in 2009. I received word in August that a short story I had written would be published in a Christian teen girl magazine. Without the word of knowledge - the word of encouragement - I would not have achieved this success.
